POULTRY SHOW TO BE NOV. 27-28

OIL BELT FIELD TRIAL OPENS HERE NOV. 30

ONE OF BIGGEST EVENTS OF ITS KIND IN SOUTH

Comanche will be the host for an event of more than state-wide interest when the Oil Belt Field Trial Association meets here Nov. 30 for a three days trial. Devotees of this sport and many of the most prominent bird dog fanciers, with some of the best known dogs of America, will be here from several different states. A barbecue will be given by the club at the field trial course Monday, November 30, the first of the meet, and everything will be done that the town can do to assist the visitors of hearty welcome throughout their stay in Comanche.

On State Game Preserve
The trial will be run over the game preserve west of town, which has been posted and protected the last two years. During this year not a gun has been fired on this preserve, only in killing off hawks, etc.

The State has 12,000 acres under protection. The Comanche Game Preserve Association has about 3,000 acres under protection adjoining this preserve.

These courses have been stocked with quail by the State for the last years. Something like 500 quail have been liberated, all on the field courses. Besides there were lots of native birds on these grounds because this was made a State game preserve. In addition, there have been quail, Hungarian partridges and other chicken liberated here.

L. M. Cochran, secretary-treasurer of the Oil Belt Association, said last week that the sportsmen were entering if the same conditions existed as in the past—"the abundance of birds"—and in this connection he said: "I can assure you that condition will not exist. I know we have the birds on these courses, for I have been over them."

Its First Meeting Here
For the past few years the Oil Belt Field Trial Association has held its meetings at Bowie and Weatherford. Reception given the sportsmen at trials held here by the West Texas Amateur Field Trial Association, and the excellent and well equipped courses, it is stated, have the chief factors in this selection of Comanche for the event this year.

One of the members of the board of governors of the Oil Belt Field Trial Association are Comanche O. O. Brightman and Dr. I. M. Cochran. Dr. Cochran being the secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Lee of Fort Worth is the president making this week of the opening event, Dr. Cochran said: "Comanche is making arrangements to take care of the Field Trial. Comanche has the reputation of training her guests in a style not only to Comanche. When the trial is over I don't think there will be any question as to where the Oil Belt will hold its next trial. I am all well and will be willing and anxious to come back to Comanche for 1926. The Oil Belt will run its open stakes this year starting November 30 on Monday at noon the Lions of Comanche will give a free game to the Field Trial men, which will be served on the field ground. Among the professional trainers that will attend the field trial are C. H. Harris of Hayneville, who has in his string Champion Ace, owned by Jacob France of Moore, Md., Western Rap, owned by J. S. Dillard, Wichita Falls,

(By M. J. S.)

As the sun went down over the local ball park on Armistice Day and the referee's whistle closed the annual battle between the Comanche Indians and the Brownwood Lions, it was pronounced by all Comanche fans the end of a perfect day.

It was a perfect day for football and the game was one of the finest exhibitions of scrappy football ever seen on the local field. Comanche won 7 to 6 but it was anybody's game to the last minute.

Brownwood was doped to win by two touchdowns, and five hundred fans came over on a special train to see the Lions conquer the Indians, but it was a sadder and wiser bunch that dragged their tired feet homeward at the close of bitter day.

The first half was all in favor of the Indians, making six first to Brownwood's one. The last half each side made three. Mason attempted two field goals in the first quarter, one of which was blocked, the other wild. The quarter ended with the ball in Brownwood's possession in the center of the field.

Brownwood kicked to Comanche's 10 yard line on the first play of the second quarter. Mason stood, kicked his ten yard line and kicked over the safety's head, the ball rolling within two feet of Brownwood's goal line. This was probably the longest punt ever made on the local field.

The rest of the period was played in Brownwood's territory and in the last half minute of play Mason intercepted a Brownwood pass on the 30 yard line, running for a touchdown. Kick for goal was good.

Brownwood came back strong in the second half, keeping Comanche on the defensive for the greater part of the half. In the middle of the third period Brownwood's right end received a pass and ran 45 yards for a touchdown. Attempt for goal failed. Score 7-6.

The rest of the way was a battle royal with desperate passing and long punts featuring the play. Brownwood went to Comanche's twenty yard line, where the line stiffened and stopped them dead for three downs. An attempt at a field goal that missed by inches brought the hearts of the Indian rooters into their mouths—but the attempt failed, which gave Comanche the ball on their own 20 yard line, and Mason kicked out of danger. Two attempts to pass failed and Thaxton intercepted the third attempt. The game ended a few seconds later with the ball in Comanche's possession.

Miller, left half for Comanche, and Ferguson and Bowman of Brownwood were removed from the game with injuries. Miller was badly hurt, having some ribs broken and internal injuries.

It would be foolish to pick stars, for Comanche. Brownwood had them—Martin and Baker and the right end, whose name we did not learn, were outstanding for the Lions. But Comanche had no stars. It was a team victory, eleven clean, strong, high class boys, all for one and one for all, fighting against odds for the honor of their school and the joy of the game.

All honor to a "game," clean, hard hitting team.

While we honor them let's also speak a word for the coaches who have labored with them and drilled them not only in the intricacies of the game, but in Roosevelt's admonition, "Don't flinch and don't foul, but hit the line hard."

ARMISTICE DAY ANNIVERSARY IS OBSERVED HERE

Armistice Day was observed as a holiday in Comanche, business houses remaining closed all day.

A program befitting the spirit of the day was rendered at the High School Auditorium Wednesday morning, the speaker of the day being Rev. Forest Maddox.

"Clubbing a Husband" By Study Club Is a Decided Success

"Clubbing A Husband," the play prepared by the Study Club under the direction of Mrs. Romee Walker, was presented at the High School auditorium Tuesday night, and was an unqualified success from every standpoint. The cast included many of the leading members of the Study Club, representing nearly every type of woman, from the mannish "Dr. Jordan" to the "clinging vine" variety in the adoring wife of "George" and the old fashioned Mrs. Ottaway, who persisted in defending the standards of old fashioned wives. But all united under the leadership of the militant Mrs. Ashton, to free them from the tyranny of dominating husbands. Though some held wifely misgivings, all apparently yielded to the radical theories of their leader, and all went well until the husbands themselves appeared on the scene and "mere man" was the victor.

The play was a three act comedy full of ridiculous situations and human interest, and held the attention of a large and appreciative audience throughout the evening.

Each and every role was enacted in a manner worthy of special mention, and the fetching costumes were decidedly appropriate to the character which represented the type portrayed.

Several musical selections given between each act by the High school orchestra, under the direction of Mr. T. H. Broad were well received, and a snappy vocal number by eight young men directed by Mrs. H. E. Moore elicited considerable applause.

The play was given by the Study Club for the benefit of the High School library and the proceeds will be applied to the purchase of books necessary to hold affiliation.

The school is grateful indebted to the Study Club for this aid, and the public equally so for an evening of genuine enjoyment. Many expressions of praise and appreciation of the performance have been remarked.

The cast of characters was as follows: Mrs. Ashton, Mrs. I. M. Cochran; Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Ben F. Hearn; Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. C. A. Greene; Mrs. Skylark, Mrs. H. E. Moore; Mrs. Reynolds, Miss Minnie Cunningham; Mrs. Ferrie Mrs. Jack Moore; Mrs. Ottaway, Mrs. H. N. Goodson; Frederick Sweeney; Vasco Lee; George Newman, Dr. I. M. Cochran; John Ashton, C. A. Greene, Belle, the colored cook, Mrs. A. J. Campbell; Sambo, her husband, Lionel Slider; Bridget the wash-lady, Mrs. Hart Shoemaker; Pat O'Flanagan, her husband, John D. Waring, Jr.; Dr. Jordan, Mrs. Ira Clemons, Maud Ashton, Constance Knutson.

TURKEY PICKERS WANTED—Comanche Produce Company.

INTEREST BEING SHOWN BY MANY CHICKEN RAISERS AND FINE EXHIBIT IS EXPECTED

The suggestion of a Poultry Show has brought many responses, and County Agent Barton after talking with several interested parties has brought the word to the Chief that we'll go a head with it." So here goes for a first class show.

The dates will be Friday and Saturday, November 27-28, and the premium list and other details will be announced next week.

However, practically all of those interested in the show have stated that they are not particularly interested in the matter of money premiums, but simply want to put on a good poultry show that will mean something to the poultry industry of this county.

Mr. Mackey of the Mackey Motor Company has very kindly consented to allow the use of his ware house, just off the square as the place for the show. This assures excellent and convenient quarters for it.

Norrid and Prater have very generously announced that will furnish feed for the chickens during the two days of the show.

Plans are being made to have poultry experts here and to arrange for a real worth-while program in the way of discussion of poultry problems. It has been said that Miss Temple of the Poultry department of the Frisco railroad will probably be able to attend, and to spend two or three days in the county at that time in the interest of the poultry industry.

Watch for full announcement of the program next week.

ROWLAND BUYS ODOM STOCK; IS PUTTING ON SALE ARE OPPOSED TO PROPOSED WORK ON NEW HIGHWAY

W. H. Rowland has bought the stock of goods of the W. C. Odom 5 and 10 Cent Store and is announcing a special sale starting tomorrow, Nov. 14.

Mr. Rowland states that he will for the present carry the business on at its location on the south side of the square, in addition operating his store which he has just gotten into its new location on the west side.

As stated in the Chief in a recent issue, Mr. Rowland has been in business here seventeen years, and has built up a great business in his line.

Both the Rowland and the Odom stores have carried larger and more complete than is usually carried in 5, 10 and 25 cent stores in a town the size of Comanche. And with both under the same ownership Mr. Rowland has on hand at present one of the largest selections of such goods to be found.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Odom will be glad to know that the sale does not mean that they are to leave Comanche. Mr. Odom states that he will continue to make his home in Comanche, for the present at least, and will devote his time to his ranch and farming interests in this county. He has been in business here for thirteen years, and first of all wants to take a complete rest for a while.

Woman's Exchange has been opened by Mrs. Y. W. Holmes in Atwood's Furniture Store. She sells on commission anything made by the women of Comanche. Hours are 11 to 12:15 and 3:30 to 6:30 every day.

Marion Wilkerson went to Dallas Wednesday to visit his son, Danforth, at S. M. U. and attend the big football game.

A QUESTION AND A SUGGESTION

Editor Chief:

The question is this: Have we the right to accept the service of the members of our local Fire Department, whose duty it is to perform exceedingly hazardous service without compensation, and the people whom they serve not to provide for them and their families some sort of protection against bodily injury?

Every fire of any consequence calls for service of these men. No fire is ever fought without fearful hazards being encountered by the firemen. Is it right for us to expect them to accept these hazards without our first offering them some sort of protection?

The suggestion is this: Let there

The Chief has received the following statement:

To The Tax Payers of Precinct No. Two.

We understand there are several petitions in circulation asking Mr. Moody to open up the New Highway to Mills county line as laid out by the Highway Department.

For the benefit of those who do not know anything about this proposition we would like to say that it would be wise for you to make some investigations before you sign it.

Mr. Moody knows what he is doing and is trying to not be a party to the extravagant waste of the State and County's Tax Money, he could have built us just as good road at about one fourth, (1-4) the cost that it will take to build it under the plan of the Highway Department and we say to you that we need more Moody's less Highway Departments.

be provided out of the city funds a form insurance that will adequately protect every bona fide member of the local fire department against bodily injury or death, sustained while in the act of defending the property of the tax payers of Comanche against fire.

Such insurance would doubtless not occasion a very heavy cost. But let it cost what it may, I submit in the name of fair play and good sportsmanship that it should be provided.

May I state that this is brought forth without the knowledge, or suggestion, of any one in any wise connected with the local fire department.

AN ORDINANCE

An ordinance to amend Section 2 of an ordinance defining the fire limits within the City of Comanche, Texas, and regulating the construction of buildings therein, and adding thereto section 2a, and declaring an emergency.

Be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Comanche, Texas:

Section 2. Every building hereafter constructed or erected within the said fire limits shall be inclosed on all sides with walls consisting wholly of stone, brick, Portland cement, concrete, iron, or steel, or if approved by building committee of the city council, any other hard and incombustible material, but the erection or construction of frame buildings within said fire limits is hereby prohibited. LET EVERY AMERICAN, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country and never to tolerate their violation. Let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his own and his children's liberty. Let reverence for the law be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in schools, in seminaries, and in colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling-books, and in almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed from legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the Nation, and let the old and young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.—Abraham Lincoln.

Belief consists in accepting the affirmations of the soul; unbelief, in denying them.—Emerson.

"I suffered with severe bilious attacks that came on two or three times each month," says Mr. J. P. Nevins, of Lawrenceburg, Ky. "I would get nauseated. I would have dizziness and couldn't work. I would take pills until I was worn-out with them. I didn't seem to get relief.

"A neighbor told me of and I began its use. I never have found so much relief as it gave me. I would not be without it for anything. It seemed to cleanse my whole system and made me feel like new. I would take a few doses—get rid of the bile and have my usual clear head, feel full of pep, and could do twice the work."

Bilious attacks are "seasonal" with many people. Millions have taken Thedford's Black-Draught to ward off such attacks, and the good results they have reported should induce you to try it.

COMANCHE Week Commencing MONDAY, NOVEMBER 23

AS WE SIT AND THINK (“Sometimes ‘Jest Set’”) By J. R. Eanes

“Man's inhumanity to man causes countless thousands to mourn.” This is true today, but not so true as when it was first said.

There is no question but that the world is growing better, possibly not day by day, week by week, nor even year by year, but surely generation by generation.

Right now there appears to be a crime wave on. A number of forces have operated to bring this about, but none of them fundamental, and this present decade, at home and abroad, is noted for the lack of ability character and vision of the men in high places in the political world.

Just now there is hardly a star of the first magnitude on the political horizon. Good people have been so engrossed in their personal affairs, that they have left their government to incompetents and shysters. To most of our best people public life is distasteful and they are loath to make the sacrifices necessary to office holding, and especially are they loath to offer themselves for office when the chances are they will be defeated by a mountebank, shyster or blatherskite.

But things have come to such a pass in the political realm that good men must make the sacrifice and when they must, they will. People throughout the country are waking up to conditions, and when thoroughly awake they will right conditions.

An overwhelming majority of our people are clean and honest, but so far as politics are concerned, are interested only in honest, clean government. The trouble with them in their lethargy is that they are not discerning—discriminating. The first thing a boy or girl should be taught is to distinguish between a man and a mountebank. They should be taught to distrust and shun the man who professes or manifests and undue interest in their welfare.

Beware of him who professes too much. People like to be coddled and cajoled, but they are fast realizing that the coddling has been done at their expense, and that the rates are too high.

Spiritually and morally our people are on the up grade. Materialism has seen its peak, greed and avarice are on the wane. More men and women of worth are today giving their time, money and best thought to the solution of the problems of the day, than ever before in the world's history. More people are thinking today, and we are having expressed more independent and unselfish thought than ever before, and when men and women think unselfishly and independently, humanity will profit, and the world progress.

If the people who would serve humanity would make use of the opportunities to reach the people that are open to them, this next generation would see the greatest spiritual uplift the human race has known. The greatest avenue open to them is the public school. Through the public school seventy-five per cent of our people can be reached, and you come in direct contact with the boys and girls who will shape life of the next generation, and mould the ideals of generations to come.

We believe that few of our people realize the vital importance of our public schools. They are so vital to our future that they should command and demand our best thought, our highest talent, and our whole-hearted interest. They are our schools, and through them we can insure the future of our country.

Professional Tergiversation

That seems like a terrific heading, doesn't it? Well, it means evasion, and evasion, in the sense I use it, means lying after a certain fashion. The whole trial in the Scopes case at Dayton, Tennessee, was characterized by tergiversation on the part of the attorneys for Scopes when they tried to work in evidence concerning the truth or falsity of evolution, which was not in the least degree an issue in the case.

Now, I don't know what kind of an oath is taken in the other states by an applicant for admission to the bar, but Texas requires him to swear that he will demean himself honestly in the practice of the law. And this oath is understood by the profession as meaning just what it says without any limitation. It is understood to mean that the applicant will be true to the law as well as to his clients, and that there is no conflict of duty between being true to the law and being true to his client. Further, it means that if the law is clearly contrary to his client's interests, he will not misrepresent the law in order to serve his client. The province of the lawyer in appearing before the court in the trial of any case is to aid the court in arriving at impartial justice without fear or favor. It requires much time and research on the part of a lawyer to thoroughly master the law which properly applies to the facts of the case, and the presentation of this law to the court, making the best of a truthful statement for the benefit of his client, but not bending or twisting the law where such bending or twisting is clearly illogical and absurd. Lawyers are called officers of the court, and the meaning of that is, that they are supposed to aid the court in arriving at justice and preventing injustice, either to one party or the other involved in the controversy.

In the Tennessee case, the attorneys for Scopes all knew, without question, that the truth or falsity of evolution was not an issue in the case. The law of the state was clear, forbidding the teaching of a certain theory which grows out of evolution, and for which it is admitted that there is a great deal of evidence tending to support it, but on the other hand, it is also admitted that the theory is not an established fact, and therefore is still in the hypothetical stage.

Scopes admitted that he had violated the law, and actually caused himself to be arrested and indicted. The ground upon which his attorneys took their stand was a decision of the Supreme Court which declared a law of Oregon unconstitutional because it attempted to prevent the teaching of the German language in the public schools could not possibly exert a baneful influence upon the morals of the pupils, and therefore it was one of the inalienable rights of a citizen to have his children educated in foreign language where the school was taught in our own tongue.

In the Tennessee case it was decidedly different. The reason of the law forbidding the teaching in the public, tax-supported schools was that it undermined the religious faith of the students, and therefore was equivalent to teaching a certain form of religion—or irreligion, as the case may be—which brought it into conflict with the constitution, and the state had a perfect right to proscribe it. The attorneys for Scopes knew all this, and that there was actually no doubt whatever as to the effect of such teaching in the public schools and of the right of the state to proscribe it. Yet they paraded a large number of witnesses for no other purpose than to thrash out the details of evolution itself by making the trial court a debating society of academic questions.

In the court martial case now being tried, in which Col. Mitchell is charged with insubordination and conduct prejudicial to the order and discipline of the military and naval forces of the country, his advocates are making a strenuous endeavor to get in evidence of the truth of his public utterances, and such proof is entirely irrelevant, under a general rule which holds, everywhere, but more especially in any organization maintained for the policing and defense of the country. That rule is that the subordinate is governed by the superior. The local county tax collector gets his orders from the state comptroller, the judges of the inferior courts are bound by the judgments of their superiors, and in private life any large business employing numbers of men the rule is the same. The man who takes a subordinate position knows this before he takes it. What would be thought of a man who takes a job with the Higginbothams, for instance, draws his salary from their bank account, and while working, or pretending to work for their interest, talks publicly and in the news papers with scathing criticisms of its general management? If he wants to pass such criticisms, first duty he owes to them is to step down and out of his position, where he can exercise his God-given right of free speech on his own responsibility.

No business can be conducted successfully if such conduct is maintained as one of the inalienable rights of free speech. Mitchell's advocates know this just as well as they know the alphabet, and the court martial can do nothing else than find him guilty of insubordination and administer such punishment as they may deem expedient. In my judgment the lawyers and advocates are going for afield from their duty in attempting to confuse the issue, and are lacking sincerity.

The Ray Howell Show will be in Comanche for one week beginning Monday, November 23.

Mr. Moseley, veteran advance man, aged 73, who has come to De Leon often in advance of Glen Burnk's show, is traveling ahead of Ray Howell. Commenting on the Ray Howell show he said: "Ray Howell has the best dramatic company playing under canvas in the United States or anywhere else."

Ray Howell is carrying with them the Sutherland Saxophone Quartette a musical organization that has played the entire Orpheum Pantages and Keith circuits. This is a "stage feature," Mr. Moseley said. They also have Stanford & Barton, vaudeville artists, not to mention a 12-piece band and a 9-piece orchestra.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES

On Halloween at the Camp Fire Girls turned themselves into witches and ghosts and invited their friends to their haunt, where bats and owls and black cats and skeletons were plentiful. Many and varied were the costumes in which the guests came, and together with the decorations they presented a striking scene. A fortune-teller in her dark tent foretold the weal or woe that the future held for each. After several games refreshments were served in true Halloween style. The place of the entertainment was the social room of the church. This church is glad to lend its interest and help to the Camp Fire Girls.

On Saturday the Ladies Auxiliary will give a social at church to which all the members of the Cradle Roll, Beginners, and Primary members are invited, together with their mothers. The superintendents of these departments wish to get in closer touch with the mothers of their pupils so that there may be more mutual understanding of their work and aims. It is noted that the mothers visit their children's classes since they have been renovated, and see how the church is doing all it can to take care of those who come to it. We resume our regular Prayer Meeting service and choir practice this week. The regular morning and evening services will be held next Sunday. The church will be comfortable; the service lasts but an hour; there will be special music; our welcome is cordial and sincere; and we extend an invitation to all to worship with us.

Big Log Jam in Coquille River Picture

Thousands of residents of Coquille, Roseburg and other towns in Oregon will be able to say, in the years to come, that they witnessed the biggest log jam ever staged and pictured in the logging country. They saw Irvin Willat and a company of 100 Paramount players film the log drive on the middle ford of the Coquille River.

Incidentally, the desire to see this wonder scene was so great on the part of the Oregonians that they traveled on foot many miles through an almost impassable wilderness to satisfy their curiosity.

Actual shooting of the scenes came only after weeks of preparation under the supervision of a famous logging expert of the north country. The drive was staged in the vicinity of the Baxter and Barker lumber camp, and at a time when the river had reached its highest point in years adding much to the spectacularness and to the danger of the scene.

All the labor and risks were undertaken by Willat and his Paramount players to immortalize for the screen James Oliver Curwood's story, "The Ancient Highway," which will be shown on Monday and Tuesday at the Majestic Theatre.

The featured players are Jack Holt, Billie Dove and Montagu Love.

DEATH SUMMONS FOR LITTLE HENRY BROOKS FARRAR

TO THE CHIEF:

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Farrar and took their little bright jewel, Henry Brooks, Nov. 1 at 8 p. m. He had been a little sufferer for 10 months, having swallowed some concentrated lye. His throat had almost closed from the effects of the lye. He was later taken to Scott and White hospital at Temple where the very best surgical aid was given by Dr. Sherwood, who had put down nine tubes sizes from 8 to 15 each tube being 26 inches long.

The little fellow bore his affliction with very much patience, never worrying in the least; only looking forward to the day when the tube could be removed entirely.

His place is vacant in the home. He was always cheerful, singing romping and always in a cheerful mood. Only to love him was to know him.

As the evening shadow had softly gathered bringing rest and sweet repose to the way worn toilers this little darling's eyes did close.

BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS NOTES

To the more than three thousand non-church goers of Comanche we extend a most cordial invitation to attend our services.

To spend the Lord's day in aimless idleness is positively sinful. There is a physical, mental and social, as well as a spiritual, benefit in attending religious services on Sunday.

To rear children without giving them the opportunities for religious development as provided for in our Sunday schools is to deprive them of one of their just rights. Some good fathers and mothers of Comanche stand condemned at this point.

A non-church going people can never be a prosperous people. The religious element is essential to the growth and development of any community.

The man who spends his time scoffing at the churches of the community is a menace to the community. But the actual injury such a one does to the cause of religion in a community is not so great as the harm done by the church member who professes love for the church and yet turns his back upon the services of the church.

The most efficient servant of the devil is the lukewarm Christian. With him the devil can make it appear that after all there is but little to be matter of religion.

A business man has his differences with his business associates but soon is able to adjust matters and is soon found back in line doing his work and carrying his load. Some church members when they differ with their brother Christians in church matters QUIT.

Friend, did you go to church and Sunday school last Sunday? If you did not doubtless there was something that made you feel justified in not doing so. But after all I suspect that the thing that kept you from going was an imaginary something. Let me as a friend urge you to attend some religious service next Sunday. You owe it to yourself and to your family. Who ever you may be and wherever you may live may I insist that you decide now and begin making your plans to attend religious services somewhere next Sunday.

The First Baptist Church Invites You.

Bill Burton of Newburg won the ten dollar prize for the best feed crops display in Comanche on the third of last month. And here is a very interesting point that every farmer in Comanche county should get and remember. Mr. Burton believed that he was able to make this good showing because he grew the crops on land that had been terraced.

QUESTIONS FOR THE RURAL COMMUNITY

(From Rural School Notes)

The program recently announced for American Education Week, November 16-22, suggests many questions of vital importance to the rural community. The general topic for discussion November 20, "Know Your School," should attract the whole country-side to its school that Friday afternoon.

You can not really know your own school without comparing it with other schools in country and city. Is it better than schools in other districts? Why is it not so good a school as those provided for city children? Is the city elementary school really better in every respect than the country school? If so, why? Is it because the city schools have longer terms, better teachers, better school buildings with better equipment?

Why are all the city schools in session nine months in the year, and some of them ten months, while the country schools average terms of seven months and some states only five or six months? Why are the country schools not open nine months in the year? Is it because the people do not want the full term or because they can not provide the funds? Is this also the reason they can not always employ teachers as competent as those who teach in the cities, or is it because so few well trained teachers offer their service for rural work?

Why are there better school buildings better equipped for the city schools? Is it because the cities raise more money for these things than rural schools can possibly secure? If you could have all these better things for the country schools would they not bring better attendance and better progress? Under present conditions is there any such thing as Equality of Opportunity in Education for the children of the country?

For years the Myrtle Springs nursery has been growing the best fruit trees it is possible to grow and selling them to nurseries over the state. We have now decided to break away from this habit and offer you as good trees as money can buy at wholesale rates. We grow more fruit trees probably than any two of the big retail nurseries in the state and if you order from us you do not have to take trees that have been shipped two or three times. We will get them right out of the ground and send them to you. No chance for mistake. We specialize on Elbertas and budded our trees from one of the best Elberta orchards in Van Zandt county. We do not try to grow everything, but we do try to grow what we do grow good enough for any planter.

COMANCHE WOMAN CAPTURES PRIZES WITH R. I. REDS

A Comanche woman, Mrs. J. H. Prater, has drawn premiums and blue ribbons galore on her Rhode Island Red chickens in all the shows where she has exhibited them this fall, a distinction she has achieved from a very modest plant in her back yard, within the city limits of Comanche.

At the Gorman fair, she was awarded first premium on cockerels, first and third pullets. She also entered her fowls in the Central West Texas Fair at Eastland. In this show her awards were first pen, first and third pullets; also champion pullets, and grand champion female in any class, and at the Oil Belt Fair at Breckenridge she drew first, third and fourth on pullets.

Mrs. Prater entered two pens at the Dublin Fair last week, in addition to her single entries, and her premiums there were first and second pens, first cock, and second and third pullets, making a record of having won the blue ribbons in every class.

Mrs. Prater started her venture in pure bred poultry raising, two years ago with three settings of eggs, at an outlay of about $10. From these hatchings she raised thirty pullets of the Airhart strain, from which she culled ten of the best and mated with a cockerel of the Owen and Tompkins strain. From this mating she produced two selected pens which she mated with two fine cocks, one from Owen Farm and one from Tompkins, and her prize winners this year were the product of these matings.

For mating with her choice pen for the coming season Mrs. Prater has just received a splendid cockerel which she ordered from E. W. Mayhood of Missouri, one of the leading R. I. Red breeders of the country. This bird cost fifty dollars and her pens next year will doubtless produce some very fancy birds which should prove even bigger prize winners than those shown this year.

Mrs. Prater has kept a strict account of her income and expenses this year and finds that her average income for ten months has netted $11.65 per month, which is a splendid showing for a small back yard flock. She is very enthusiastic on the subject of poultry raising and attributes her success to careful attention, trap nesting and systematic culling.

IS THE SMALL TOWN BETTER THAN THE CITY?

(By Dr. W. P. Meroney, Professor of Sociology, Baylor University, Waco, Texas)

(Editor's Note: The Chief is here with presenting another of a series of articles on educational, scientific and otherwise interesting topics written by a picked group of professors of Baylor University, Waco, Texas. The article below is by Dr. W. P. Meroney, professor of sociology of the university and graduate of the department of sociology of University of Chicago. Dr. Meroney also holds degrees from Baylor University A. B.; Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Th. M., and Th. D. He is a preacher, writer and lecturer of prominence.)

An old adage is that "God made the country; man made the city; but the devil made the little town."

There seem to be few defenders of the little town in this day of the wild scramble to get to the city. That the town or at least the village has always been the most universal form of human territorial grouping is well known to students of history. The city as we know it is a modern invention. So also is the open country as it existed in the earlier days of our national history.

In Europe people live in the villages and go to the country to work. In China they do the same. Among primitive peoples village grouping has been well-nigh universal. It is well to raise the question now as to whether the village is to continue in human society or be obliterated entirely. No one may be able to give a satisfactory answer now; but it is worth thinking about.

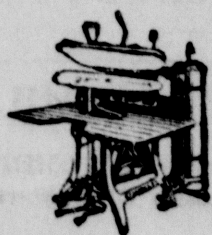

A banker in a small town in Kentucky fought the building of a state highway on the ground that it would enable burglars to come in and rob his bank and get quickly away and a merchant in the same town joined him in the opposition because it would bring him into competition with the merchants of the larger neighboring towns. The facts are that when the good road did come it reduced the population of the town, the deposits in the bank and the volume of the merchant's trade. Some think that America will be all cities. Others think that the cities have reached their zenith and that the tides are turning back to the small town. Still others are of the opinion that America will become a nation of "string-towns." That is, the population will be strung out along the national highways.

Many large corporations have left the cities with high property values and high taxes and have established "company towns." In some cases these are virtually "company cities" as Gary, Indiana; but in many other cases they are fine examples of town life. Village population seems to be augmented by many substantial farmers moving in for the benefit of the school and the values of the community life who make daily trips to and from the farm in the Ford.

It may be that the future of the South, particularly the Southwest and of Texas will see a large growth in village life through the concentration therein of the substantial farm element; and the rise of a peasant class of incompetent whites, negroes and Mexicans will remain in the open country. Some close students of society believe very strongly that we are headed in that direction.

The little town is not a paradise.
